Dear Steve,

How nice to hear from you again. I particularly appreciate your nice words on the way I am going about this fascinating but controversial job. It's quite different from my Navy life, but a very thrilling opportunity.

I do hope we can see each other at least briefly in New York. If not, there is some possibility I will be speaking in Houston next February or March. We are in the midst of some planning in that direction. I'll let you know.

Again, thanks and all the best.

Yours,

STANSFIELD TURNER

Admiral Stansfield Turner, USN
Director of Central Intelligence
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Admiral Turner:

I have just received the announcement for your remarks at the Council on Foreign Relations in New York on Wednesday, October 5th. There is a chance that I may be in Manhattan on business that week; if so, I will be sure to be in attendance that afternoon. It would be good to see you again.

Recent discussions of the role of the DCI seem to have caused at least as much heat as light around Washington and have made you a somewhat controversial figure. I for one feel that you are going about the job in just the right manner. I also subscribe to what I sense from afar to be your vision of the larger responsibility within the intelligence community which should define the Director's role.

Keep fighting the good fight. I know that you will. It would be a pleasure to see you again in New York or Washington before too long.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Steven B. Pfeiffer
